QlikView – Analytical Power and Performance

Free Professional Workshop

QlikView is a well established product that is part of a new generation of business intelligence tools. Holding data in-memory to deliver fast performance, it offers remarkable analytical flexibility. It is perfect in situations where fast action is vital to delivering business value and where the understanding of business needs is still evolving. It is intuitive and user-friendly; users without technical knowledge take to it very quickly. Join this workshop to see how organisations are getting impressive results with QlikView and to understand the possibilities it offers you.

Ealing Film Studios, Wednesday July 7th, 10am – 1:00pm with lunch to follow.

Objective

This workshop will help you assess the potential of QlikView and to see how it can contribute to achieving your business objectives at both the departmental and the enterprise level.

Content

Our specialists will share their experiences in exploiting QlikView in leading global companies, pulling out the key learning points and showing how it has helped our customers to create business value. The workshop will include a series of demonstrations which will highlight some of the key advantages of the product and show the important dependencies.

There will be an opportunity to discuss how QlikView could help you meet your current business challenges and how it can fit into your corporate IT strategy.

Is it for you?

Are you expected to be up-to-date on business intelligence tools and techniques? Are you looking for tools which could help your people to be responsive and aligned with business value? Would it help you if you had deeper insight into the practical application and advantages of QlikView in departmental and enterprise solutions? If so, you will find this workshop a valuable use of your time.

Format

The workshop is an informal round table meeting in which there is every opportunity to benefit from shared experiences and ideas. These workshops are provided as a free service to clients and potential clients to demonstrate the possibilities in BI.
