QlikView – Analytical Power and Performance

Free Professional Workshop

QlikView is part of a new generation of business intelligence tools. Holding data in-memory to deliver fast performance, it offers remarkable analytical flexibility. There is no reliance on fixed, inflexible data structures, meaning that business people without technical knowledge take to it very quickly. Deployment is extremely rapid. It is perfect in situations where fast action is vital to delivering business value, but where the understanding of business needs is still evolving. Following the recent release of version 9, join this workshop to see how organisations are getting impressive results with QlikView and to understand the possibilities it offers you.

Ealing Film Studios, Wednesday November 4th, 10am – 1:00pm with lunch to follow.

Objective

This workshop will help you assess the potential of QlikView version 9 and to see how it might contribute to achieving your business objectives.

Content

Our specialists will share their experiences in exploiting QlikView in leading global companies, pulling out the key learning points and showing how it has helped our customers to create business value. The workshop will include a series of demonstrations which will highlight some of the key advantages of the product and show the important dependencies.

There will be an opportunity to discuss how QlikView could help you meet your current business challenges and how it might fit into your corporate IT strategy.

Is it for you?

Are you expected to be up-to-date on business intelligence tools and techniques? Are you looking for tools which could help your people to be responsive and aligned with business value? Would it help you if you had deeper insight into the practical application of QlikView and the advantages it offers? If so, you will find this workshop a valuable use of your time.

Format

The workshop is an informal round table meeting in which there is every opportunity to benefit from shared experiences and ideas. These workshops are provided as a free service to clients and potential clients to demonstrate the possibilities in BI.
