Exploring Microsoft SharePoint Free Professional Workshop

Accept this invitation to join fellow professionals at this free workshop; explore important aspects of SharePoint applications with experts, and share experiences and information with fellow professionals.

Ealing Film Studios, Tuesday 28th March, 10am – 12:30pm with lunch to follow

Background

As recent research* has shown the most valuable information workers do complex work and collaborate extensively. They prefer to pull information, they like websites, portals and document sharing, they operate by networking to exchange information; they like to span boundaries. They are highly committed and aligned to company strategy. Meeting their needs has resulted in an explosion in the use of Microsoft SharePoint; as firms exploit its easy integration with personal productivity tools, the web and analytics.

Objectives

This free half-day workshop explores important aspects of SharePoint; the real world integration of business intelligence, document management, knowledge management and collaboration. It will show what can be done and how it works.

Content

The workshop is delivered by Thorogood consultants with deep technical expertise and unparalleled experience of translating business requirements into technical solutions. They explore the significance of these capabilities. They explain clearly what is possible and how it works - in terms that are accessible to every intelligent lay person. They share real world experiences, as do the attendees, who bring examples from many different business settings.

Is it for you?

It will be valuable for managers of 'information workers' who would like to have an appreciation of just what is available to help them to be more productive. It will be useful for technical managers who have to keep up to date with the capabilities of the full range of technologies on the market. Please do pass on this invitation to people that you believe might benefit.

Format

Thorogood workshops provide an opportunity for professionals to network and to tap into the experiences of experts and fellow professionals in an informal setting. This workshop will be held at Thorogood offices at Ealing Film Studios, on Tuesday 28th March from 10am – 12:30pm with lunch to follow.
